William Cosby started playing the accordion at age 7. He studied with Tito Guidotti, Oakley Yale and Anthony Gallarini. As a participant in accordion competitions, William won 4 consecutive Accordionists & Teachers Guild (ATG) national titles (1964-1967), and numerous other national and international awards. William eventually became the Director and Conductor of the West Point Glee Club.

William abruptly stopped playing the accordion in 1978 and did not resume playing until 2009. He did not take a very long time to regain his championship form. His repertoire includes classical, jazz, and pop styles in addition to selections representative of the accordion's greatest performers over the past 80 years. This concert is not to be missed! You will be blown away by this astonishingly excellent musician!
