Dallas Vietty is an American jazz accordionist specializing in the Parisian swing-waltz style of Musette and Gypsy Jazz. He began playing the accordion in 2001, and has studied jazz and arranging at California State University Northridge and accordion performance with Stanley and Joanna Darrow. As a soloist, he performs widely, and won first place in the Free Bass category at the American Accordion Musicological Society Festival in 2011. As a band leader, his groups have performed at various venues, including Musikfest, Djangoary Festival, Djangofolies Festival, Djangology Festival, TEDxPhilly, Kimmel Center for the Performing Arts, and many others around the country. As an educator, he has taught at the famous music camp, Django, and has led workshops at the American Accordionists' Association Festival. Dallas has a prolific private studio and growing online teaching presence. He is one of a few who have a curriculum and knowledge of Musette and Gypsy Jazz for the piano accordion. He currently leads "Musette Project", a contemporary take on the modernist waltz compositions of the mid-century Parisian accordionists, and "Hot Bijoux", an early 20th century inspired hot swing group
